

When the potato picking season came round, my friends from school would come to help. There were always plenty of volunteers as this was a good opportunity to earn money for Christmas.

Most of the eggs, and some of the potatoes were sold to people from the local area, who would come to the Farm to collect them.